300 rebel soldiers in 3 revolts covered

By Christine O. Avendaño, Marlon Ramos and Dona Z. Pazzibugan

BACKED BY a supportive Congress, President Aquino has granted amnesty to detained Sen. Antonio Trillanes IV and more than 300 rebel officers and soldiers who took part in three military uprisings against his predecessor, now Pampanga Rep. Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

Mr. Aquino yesterday announced that he had signed Presidential Proclamation No. 50 and that Malacañang would await the concurrence of the Senate and the House of Representatives. With the concurrence of the two chambers, the proclamation "becomes a law," he said. "The Department of National Defense will be processing the application for amnesty once we secure the concurrence of Congress."

Those covered by the proclamation are the officers and soldiers who took part in the Oakwood mutiny on July 27, 2003, the standoff at the Marine headquarters in February 2006, and the takeover of the Manila Peninsula hotel on Nov. 29, 2007.

Amnesty will extinguish their criminal liability for acts committed in relation to the uprisings "without prejudice to [their] civil liability for injuries or damages caused to private persons."

Justice Secretary Leila de Lima said the prosecutors handling the criminal cases against Trillanes et al. had been left in

NOT EVERYONE in the Senate is eager to see Sen. Antonio Trillanes IV granted amnesty and finally join his colleagues in session.

'Dirty Harry' comes clean: I am innocent but ready to accept rap

By DJ Yap

"DIRTY HARRY" claims he is innocent, but is willing to take the rap anyway.

Manila Mayor Alfredo Lim also said on Tuesday he was prepared to accept any penalty, including dismissal, should he be found administratively liable for the Aug. 23 hostage fiasco.

"I accept the verdict as recommended by the review committee. So whatever it is, I accept. Even if I were dismissed from the service, I would accept," he told a press conference at City Hall.

This was in marked contrast to his emotional outburst early Monday morning at the flag ceremony in City Hall where a visibly angry Lim called "mga sira ang ulo" (crazies), apparently referring to those who made the recommendation.

Lim, 80, a former Manila police chief likened to the San Francisco detective in the "Dirty Harry" movie series, could face suspension if found guilty of simple neglect and misconduct.

Rape charge filed vs actor

By Julie M. Aurelio

PATRICK dela Rosa, a former actor who garnered the highest number of votes when he ran in May for board member in the first district of Oriental Mindoro, was charged yesterday with the rape of a 20-year-old woman.

The rape was filed with the Quezon City Regional Trial Court (QCRTC) by the Quezon City Prosecutor's Office which recommended no bail for the actor. It is expected to be raffled off to a branch of the QCRTC tomorrow afternoon.

Dela Rosa has been detained at the Cubao police station following his arrest on Oct. 8 at the Regalia Park Tower condominium on Edsa, Quezon City.

MMDA cancels accreditation of 7 towing firms

By Tina G. Santos

THE METROPOLITAN Manila Development Authority (MMDA) yesterday revoked the accreditation of at least seven private towing companies that have been previously authorized to operate on Edsa and other major thoroughfares for violating guidelines on towing operations.

Thirteen other towing firms were issued one-month temporary permits while their operations are under evaluation by the agency, said MMDA Chair Francis Tolentino, adding that this was part of the agency's efforts to streamline the operation of towing services in Metro Manila.

"We have been hearing many complaints against abusive towing companies so this is now the time to check on how they do their business," the MMDA chief said, as he assured motorists that they would be very strict in issuing new accreditations.

Abusive practices

Of the 20 towing services licensed by the MMDA, the seven were denied temporary accreditations following issues on abusive practices they allegedly committed, according to [illegible].

China tries to calm Asia nerves over sea disputes

HANOI—China worked to calm nerves on Tuesday among Asian neighbors jittery over its recent attempts to assert greater control over disputed waters, while its rival Washington stressed its national interest in keeping those seas free for commerce.

US Defense Secretary Robert Gates said the United States had a stake in the growing number of disputes about ownership of Asian island chains and ship routes through waters China claims.

"We have a national interest in freedom of navigation, in unimpeded economic development and commerce and in respect for international law," Gates told a regional security forum of defense ministers in the Vietnamese capital.

The message was strong and the audience unmistakable, but Gates avoided a direct confrontation with China. He never mentioned the country by name during a brief address to the group of security ministers, which included a top Chinese general.

Several Asian countries have expressed concern over increasingly aggressive maritime moves by the communist giant, including its response to a ship collision last month off disputed islands in the East China Sea that plunged relations between China and Japan to a five-year low. Relations have since improved, but both countries continue to claim sovereignty over the territory, known as Senkaku in Japan and Diaoyu in China.

CHINA'S Gen. Liang Guanglie (center) listens to the closing remarks at the meeting of Asian defense ministers, along with their counterparts from the United States, China, Russia, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, India and South Korea, on Tuesday in Hanoi. AP

China tried to ease tensions on Tuesday by reassuring its neighbors that it wanted to work together.

"China pursues a defense policy that is defensive in nature. China's defense development is not aimed to challenge or threaten anyone, but to ensure its security and promote international and regional peace and stability," Chinese Gen. Liang Guanglie said in a speech to his counterparts.

"Security of a country relies not only on self-defense capabilities, but also on mutual trust with others," Liang added.

Defense ministers from the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations, along with their counterparts from the United States, China, Russia, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, India and South Korea attended the meeting on Tuesday in Vietnam's capital.

China considers the US position on maritime navigation and security to be meddling in Asian affairs. Beijing was irate when US Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton used similar language in July.

"The United States has always exercised our rights and supported the rights of others to transit through, and operate in, international waters," Gates said. "This will not change, nor will our commitment to engage in activities and exercises together with our allies and partners."

Gates was referring, in part, to China's claim to control water far off its coastline that the United States considers open water under international law. He also was reaffirming US support for Southeast Asian nations that feel threatened by China and want US backing even as they try to maintain cordial relations with their much larger Asian neighbor. AP

Nobel winner treated better

BEIJING—China accused foreign governments on Tuesday of interfering in its political system by praising the awarding of the Nobel Peace Prize to an imprisoned dissident, while his wife said prison authorities had started giving him better food.

Democracy campaigner Liu Xiaobo's wife, Liu Xia, said in a rare phone interview with The Associated Press that she faced restrictions on where she could meet and must be accompanied by police escort whenever she left her home.

She said her husband's brother told her that the prison started providing Liu Xiaobo better food on Monday, serving him individually prepared food accompanied by rice rather than a portion of food cooked in a large pot for many prisoners, which is usually of poor quality.

The Norwegian-based Nobel committee honored Liu's more than two decades of advocacy of human rights and peaceful democratic change—from 1989 to a manifesto for political reform that he coauthored in 2008 and which led to his latest prison term. AP

Muji sneak peek!

The popular Japanese retail brand finally opens in Manila. INQUIRER Lifestyle tells you what to expect

By Pam Pastor

FOR MONTHS, people couldn't stop talking about it.

"Muji in Manila?" "Who's bringing it in?" "When will it open?" "Where will it be?" "What will the prices be like?"

News drove Filipino fans of the Japanese retail brand wild with anticipation. "Will they carry the pens and notebooks?" "Can I buy my favorite ...?" "Will they be bringing in the clothes?"

Muji opened its first store in Japan in [illegible] and has since become a worldwide favorite because of its minimalism, innovation and earth-friendliness.

Now that Stores Specialists Inc. has brought the brand to the country, Muji fans no longer need to fly to HK, Singapore or Bangkok to bring their favorite Muji products home.

INQUIRER Lifestyle visited the first Muji store in the country and talked to [illegible] Padilla, Muji's merchandise manager, about the products, the prices, the plans and the big opening.

Shopping parties

Muji opens with two shopping parties on Oct. 15—one for the press in the morning and another for [illegible] invited guests in the evening. On Oct. 16, Muji opens to the public.

Muji's first branch is a big [illegible] sq m store at Block 7 of Bonifacio High Street where Gap also is.

A second branch opens in December at Rockwell's Power Plant Mall.

Muji fans can expect the same shopping experience they enjoy in Muji stores abroad. Padilla said, "Customers can look forward to the same ambiance and feel they get from other Muji stores abroad. The Japanese Muji team led the design process of the store so the basic elements of a Muji store are there, such as the use of wood, metal and glass. Each Muji store is unique so, of course, the design was also tailored to the location and our country."

Expect the country's first Muji store to be stocked with the Muji goodies you love.

Padilla said, "The shop will carry Muji staples and favorites and new products. We will bring all the major lines from clothes, accessories, home items (housekeeping, dining, beddings etc.), food to stationery. All the Muji staples will be pre-
